The Three Wise ... Spies?

As we approach the Feast of the Epiphany on January 6, let's look with fresh eyes at the story of the Magi. Namely, let's consider that the Magi were spies. We don't know their original intention for seeking out the baby Jesus. Their stated intention was to pay the baby homage. But they are "from the East," which means they are likely Parthians, the ancient and vicious enemies of Rome. It's not far-fetched to suppose that they are agents of their own empire, sent to make sense of this unusual sign in the heavens — this star — that they have seen. Is this baby, whom their astrological readings tell them is a king unlike all other kings, a threat to them? They come to find out.

The Magi arrive at King Herod's court and tell him about this newborn king. No doubt Herod is wary of these strange men from the East, but he sends the Magi to collect information for him. They become his spies.

And so, to the original hearers of this story, unlike those of us who have told and retold it a thousand times in our nativity pageants, there may well have been ominous background music when the Wise Men finally arrive in Bethlehem. They are overjoyed at finding Jesus, but why? Why are they really here? Who do they really work for? Whose side are they on? When they lift their hands from their traveling chests, will those hands hold gifts or a knife?

The text is tantalizingly sparse at this point. Scripture tells us, "On entering the house they saw the child with Mary his mother; and they knelt down and paid him homage. Then, opening their treasure

Introducing valet service for those with mobility issues

To assist parishioners with mobility issues, the Cathedral will begin offering a valet service on Sunday mornings as well as some seating in the walkway leading to the Cathedral bell tower for those waiting. Valet service debuts January 6, 2019.

For those church members "who require an easier access to church services," two valets in uniform will be on duty on Sundays, 7:30 a.m. to 1 p.m., on Texas Avenue near the bell tower, said David Simpson, Cathedral COO.

While the parking garage contains designated spaces for handicapped and limited mobility parking, some members of the congregation have sought a more immediate method for getting to and into the Cathedral, Simpson said. Several had asked church leadership for some sort of assistance.

Having valet service is in response to that, he said: "We want parishioners to be at ease coming to church.

Starting January 6, valet parking will be available Sundays for parishoners with limited mobility on Texas Ave. in front of the bell tower from 7:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

"This is all about mobility," Simpson said.
"It is not intended to be a backup plan for those who are simply running a bit late for services."

The valet service, provided by Sovereign Services of Houston, will be free to parishioners.

(An excerpt from her introduction to In the Midst of the City: The Gospel and God's Politics by the Very Rev. Barkley Thompson:)

Subsequent to [Dean Thompson's] arrival at Christ Church, [parishioners] witnessed [a] connection between the Gospel and the external world through a series of discussions that Dean Thompson calls "Faith and Society."

He had grappled in his ministry with the conundrum of how to engage parishioners in conversation about significant societal issues without simultaneously starting a conflagration in the congregation.

While in Roanoke, he had participated in such a discussion led by the Aspen Institute and decided to adopt its ground rules in hopes of conducting such a dialogue, and he brought that successful practice to Houston.

A decade later, he and his family became members. Matt and wife Bess Bledsoe Wareing have served on several parish councils, the endowment board, dean search committees, and the vestry, and have chaired the EMC. The presentation features a brief stage play that interprets three key scenes from the novel. "I want attendees to experience the story the way I imagined it as I was writing," Cander says. The play will be directed by local director Elizabeth Keel, and performed by renowned local actors Bonnie Langthorn, Ian Lewis, Robert Meek, Tasha Gorel, and Bobby Haworth.

In addition, Konner Scott, the musician who composed "Die Reise," the original piece of music that appears at the end of The Weight of a Piano, will debut the piece and perform other pieces also appearing in the novel.

Over the intervening years, the Faith and Society seminar has discussed about almost every hot-button issue in contemporary society — abortion, same-sex marriage, gun control, poverty, war, immigration, to name a few. And we have always conducted the sessions in an open and frank style without any discord — disagreement, yes, but not discord.

Before each meeting, Dean Thompson provided the group with six to eight readings on the topic. He always started the readings with pertinent selections from the Bible and then included additional readings that presented either side of the session's difficult issue.

While our covenant for civility certainly influenced the positive nature of the dialogue, grounding each discussion in the Gospel — not for proof points, but for context and illumination — again reinforced the Gospel-grounded nature of his

To equip themselves for spiritual warfare, Celtic Christians composed prayers, called "Loricae" to serve as shields and defense, included as part of the tools of preaching, exorcism, and works of charity. "Lorica" in Latin means "body armor."

Honor Martin Luther King Jr. through service

Last January, in partnership with several AME churches, Christ Church Cathedral hosted an ecumenical service day of peace in honor of Martin Luther King Jr. and the work he did to promote peace.

This year, we are honored to host this event again on Monday, January 21, from 7:45 a.m. to 12 p.m. in Reynolds Hall. All service work will benefit The Beacon and its work to bring peace and comfort to our homeless brothers and sisters.

This service day MLK SERVICE DAY is open to all students from kindergarten to grade 12 and their parents. We will start with breakfast tacos and a presentation from the Rev. Glenice Robinson-Como, then move into our service work by putting supplies together for Beacon clients to use. At the end, we will gather together in prayer as we go out in peace.

chests, they offered him gifts."

No matter the Magi's original intention, no matter their conflicted and questionable allegiances, when they meet Jesus, something happens. The most important line in this story is the final one: "They left for their own country by another road." The Wise Men won't turn the knife in Jesus' side. They won't betray him to his enemies. Even if their original plans included both, meeting Jesus changes everything. No matter whose side they were on, in the end the Magi choose the side of the child over whom the star shines. They refuse to comply with the plot to destroy him. They choose Jesus.

Soul-search for a moment. Why are we at Christ Church? Why do we call ourselves Christian? Down what roads did we come? And yet, the pivotal question for us is not why or how we got here, but what road our lives will take now that we've met Jesus. We can leave the Cathedral and walk back into the potential intrigue, wrong intentions, and mixed motives of our prior lives. Or we can, with all that we are, humble ourselves before our newborn Lord, handing the whole treasure of our hearts over to him. We can rise and walk a different road, guided by the light of Jesus.
